Embedded Librarian Services

YS said she went to the meetings of the Intensive Care department every Friday. She attends meetings in person, and sometimes does "real-time," searches during the meetings. This generates a lot of clinical searches. YS also gets sent a list of the teaching topics within the department. YS said that previous links with the Burns Team continued to generate lots of searches although she doesn't go to the team meetings anymore. YS said that it can be difficult to get usable impact from the embedded service.

HC said she was more-or-less embedded in the Trust's Transformation Team and they get more of a personalized service from her. She is trying to become embedded in the gastro team after a recent request for a search.

JG has been embedded with the Trust's Urology team since April this year, building on a pre-existing relationship with one of the Urology consultants. JG goes to quality-improvement meetings once a month – virtually – and takes his cue for searches from the “mortality and morbidity,” discussions within the meetings. This has led to an increased number of searches from the department, and a poster was submitted to the British Association of Urological Surgeons Conference in June. Unfortunately all the Trust’s QI meetings happen simultaneously which makes it difficult to go to more than one department.

The JET Library is also embedded with the Quality Improvement Faculty through the QI Tracker we are notified of quality improvement projects when they are submitted and if suitable, we will conduct an evidence search. Tracy Dixon maintains the Tracker and Susan Smith report on the submissions to the repository at a monthly meeting. We are building on this by collecting patient stories in partnership with patient experience to identify potential projects or demonstrate the impact of projects. Tracy is currently preparing the videos for a Trust Stream Channel, but we plan to recruit volunteers to expand the collection of stories once we remedy issues around process flow.
